A PROPOSAL FOR THE ZETTER 717 AMSTERDAM

A Collection for The Zetter 717

Portraits of the Prinsengracht — Twenty-four rooms, twenty-four canal houses

A concept for one canal house on the Prinsengracht: twenty-four rooms, twenty-four portraits of the street outside, and a collection that could only exist here.

CANAL REFLECTIONS — DELFT

GALLERY DUTCH ART

01 — THE OPPORTUNITY

Twenty-four rooms. One canal house. A collection that could only exist here.

The Zetter 717 brings The Zetter Collection to the Prinsengracht: a single historic house, an intimate scale and a street that is itself one of the world's great works of art. We see an opportunity for a collection that feels as if it has always belonged to the house, rooted in the canal, in Delft blue and in the soft light of the Golden Age, yet unmistakably contemporary.

01

Intimacy over spectacle

At twenty-four rooms, every piece is seen up close and lived with. Quality and story matter more than size.

02

Story is the luxury

Guests should be able to discover something new in each room, and want to see the rest.

03

The street as subject

The Prinsengracht itself can become the collection: façades, water and evening light.

02 — THE CONCEPT

Portraits of the Prinsengracht

TWENTY-FOUR ROOMS, TWENTY-FOUR CANAL HOUSES

Each guest room receives its own original work: the portrait of a single Prinsengracht façade, drawn from the canal itself and rendered in Gallery Dutch Art's palette of Delft blue, ivory and evening gold. Together the twenty-four pieces form one continuous street, a collection guests can only see in full by coming back.

01

One house, one street

Every room tells its own part of the canal; the stair and corridors connect them like the street outside.

02

Delft blue, reimagined

A heritage palette used with restraint: cobalt depths, ivory light and a single line of gold.

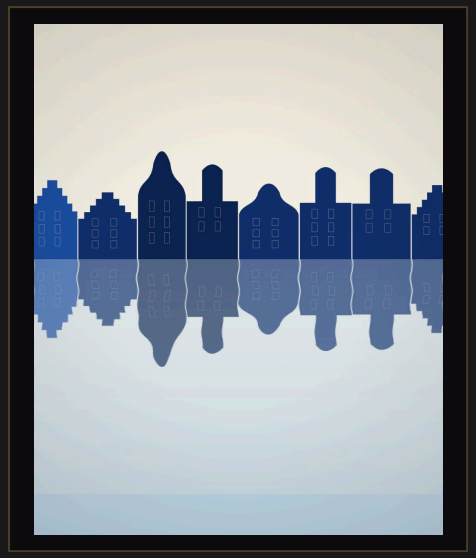

03

Collectable by design

Every room piece is a numbered original with a certificate of authenticity. Guests could acquire a signed edition of the work they slept beside.
